Twenty-Fourth Sunday in Ordinary Time

September 17, 2017

Sirach 27:30, 28:7; Romans 14:7-9; Matthew 18:31-35
Psalm 103

Dear Families:

A life that is shared is one that is multiplied.

Recently I attended a workshop on communication in which the presenter emphasized that the most important issue for people is their own. "Everything related to myself is of interest to me, regardless of how much I may try to pretend otherwise," said the speaker. He then added that if one tries to send a message that is centered on oneself only, instead of focusing on the audience, the message gets lost. The idea is two-sided, just like Jesus' message of today.

At first sight it would appear that Jesus' question "who do people say that I am?" is wrong from the beginning because it is too centered on he himself. Nevertheless, it is a good question of a good communicator, because people need to understand where the message comes from in order to comprehend it. Jesus' message, on the other hand, seems to be contradictory as well, because it encourages the audience to do exactly the opposite of their own instinct: forget their own life. We are not here for ourselves no matter how interesting we think we are. Our personal message and our life will pass quickly. Jesus, on the other hand, gives his whole life over the life of the world. And now we all have life. A life that is shared is one that is multiplied. What is kept to oneself dries up.

A person can live in his or her own world, self-centered, and preserving all their possessions very carefully. They might be good natured, responsible, and hardworking, but their work will end with them. Other people, perhaps in the same life situations, might generously share what they have and thus impact the lives of others (who, in turn, will impact others and so on). The point is to come out of oneself and place the focus on another person. In today's case, we are clearly asked, "Who is Jesus for you?" We are most likely to find the answer in people around us. But we will never be able to find it as long as we are too self-absorbed. We need to make the decision to lose life in order to have life.

May God bless you,

Fr. Celestino, Pastor

Vigésimo Cuarto Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario

17 de Septiembre del 2017

Ecles'astico 27:33, 28:9; Romanos 14:7-9; Mateo 18:21-35
Salmo 103

Queridas Familias:

La vida compartida se multiplica.

El otro día en un taller de comunicaciones, el presentador afirmaba que el asunto más importante para cualquier persona es el propio yo. Todo lo referido a mí mismo me interesa, por más que pretenda disimularlo, decía el presentador. Y seguía diciendo que, si se intenta dar un mensaje centrado en uno mismo, en lugar de en la audiencia, el mensaje se pierde.

A primera vista, entonces, parecería que la pregunta de Jesús "¿quié dice la gente que soy yo?" está equivocada en su orientación porque está demasiado centrada en sí mismo. Y sin embargo, es una pregunta de un buen comunicador. Porque es necesario que la gente comprenda de dónde viene el mensaje para poder captarlo. El mensaje de Jesús también parece contradictorio, porque parece invitar a olvidar la propia identidad, la propia vida. No estamos aquí para nosotros mismos, porque el mensaje y la vida se nos agotan rápidamente. Jesús da su vida toda para la vida del mundo. Y ahora todos tenemos vida. La vida compartida se multiplica. Lo que se guarda, se agota, se seca.

Una persona puede vivir en su mundo egoístamente guardando su vida y conservando todo lo que tiene con muchísimo cuidado. Puede que sea buena, responsable y muy trabajadora. Pero su obra se termina en ella. Otra persona, quizá en el mismo trabajo, comparte generosamente lo que tiene y afecta a la vida de otras personas (que, a su vez van a afectar a otras). El asunto está en descentrarse, salir de sí, poner el foco en la otra persona. En el caso de hoy, se nos pregunta claramente: "¿quié es Jesús para ti?" Es posible que la respuesta la hallemos en las personas de nuestro alrededor. Pero nunca la podremos encontrar mientras estemos enfrascados en nosotros mismos. Hay que tomar la decisión de perder la vida para tener vida.

Que Dios los bendiga,

Padre Celestino, Párroco

The second reading speaks of the dominion of God over human life. The pro-choice side chants, My body, my life, my choice! and the pro-euthanasia side chants also, My death! But this reading declares that Christ is Lord both of the living and the dead. When the Church defends life, she is not only defending the rights of the human person, but is also defending the rights of God himself, and his absolute dominion over human life.

La segunda lectura habla del dominio de Dios sobre la vida humana. Los grupos pro-elección gritan, ¡Mi cuerpo, mi vida, mi elección! y los grupos pro-eutanasia también, ¡Mi muerte! Pero esta lectura declara que Cristo es Señor tanto de los vivos como de los muertos. Cuando la Iglesia defiende la vida, no sólo defiende los derechos de la persona humana, sino que también defiende los derechos de Dios mismo y su absoluto dominio sobre la vida humana.

Por ejemplo, se apoya el trabajo del Departamento de Respeto a la Vida, cuya misión es ofrecer esperanza e inspiración en la promoción del respeto por toda vida humana desde la concepción hasta la muerte natural. Si usted no tiene el sobre, por favor recoja UN SOBRE PARA CFA EN LA MESA EN LA PARTE POSTERIOR DE LA IGLESIA. Los invitados que no sean miembros de la parroquia, necesitamos también su donación.
